GUARDSMEN ALL READY TO START ENCAMPMENT

Flagstaff Company Will Arrive Tonight — Farewell Band Concert This Evening—Military Parade Tomorrow Night

Company I, the first of the national guard companies to start for the annual encampment at Garden Canyon, will entrain at Flagstaff this morning, and arrive in Phoenix tonight at 9:55. The men from the north will spend the night in this city, leaving on the special train with the Phoenix companies tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

The Phoenix companies and the Flagstaff company, together with the detachment from Prescott, which arrived last night, will assemble at the Polk street armory tomorrow morning. Headed by the First Regiment band they will parade through the business district, the parade moving promptly at 8:30. They will then march to the Arizona Eastern station, where the special train will be waiting to take them to the annual encampment. The train is due to arrive at Tucson before one o'clock and will reach Ft. Huachuca late in the afternoon. From the siding near the fort, the men will have a march of about five miles to Garden Canyon.

Practically every one of the valley companies will take the largest number of men in its history to the encampment this year. Company A, in command of Capt. C. V. Gulley, will have 55 men in line and Company B will take at least fifty. By reason of the fact that Captain Stanley Williamson will not be able to attend the encampment, his command will be in charge of Captain H. G. Kendall of Parker who is already in the city. Companies C and D of Tempe and Mesa will take their full quota of men to the encampment.

A farewell concert will be given by the First Regiment band at the roof garden of the Adams hotel this evening. A program of unusual excellence has been prepared, and as this will be the band's last appearance here before leaving for the tour to the expositions, it is expected that the concert will draw a large crowd. The musicians will be grouped on the mezzanine roof of the hotel, where chairs will be provided for those who desire to listen to the concert from the balcony. The new instruments recently received from the war department will be used tonight for the first time.

GERMAN LETTER IS INTERESTING

Letter Direct from Fatherland Gives Inside and Uncensored Account of the Internal Conditions Existing There

"I am sorry I have no son who may go with the army, and for the Kaiser and the empire, to fight for 'hearth and home'—Statement of a German woman made in a letter received in Phoenix.

A letter direct from Germany, giving an authentic account of the internal condition of Kaiser Wilhelm's empire was received here yesterday by E. Louis Zimmerman, a local attorney.

The letter is from an aunt of Mrs. Zimmerman, who lives in the little town of Sebbeterode, in the kingdom of Wurtemberg, and was sent to Denver and then forwarded here. It was mailed on June 6th, and has been in the mails since that time.

The writer's home is about 120 miles from the fighting line, and is a village of about 700 souls. She says that only 70 men have left for the front from the town, and that 242 more have offered their services. Several of the families in the village have lost men, and she gives names of several of the young men who have fallen in discharge of their duties.

She writes that conditions in Germany are very quiet, and that to all appearances no war is at present devastating the major portion of Europe.

In regard to the reported curtailment of cash in Germany, she says "Everybody has a good income by reason of the progress made by the economic bureau of the imperial government."

In addition she writes that they have never suffered from a shortage of food, and their troops are being even better fed than the civilian population, and the soldiers in the field are being paid with great regularity.

That money is plentiful, she proves by the enormous subscription to the last war loan. In reference to the loan, she writes that not a cent of extra tax has been asked from the poor people, and that the poor people or peasants would be the first to be taxed.

Rumors that the royal family of Germany are not in as good standing with the poorer classes as they were before the war, are emphatically denied by the writer. She pays a glowing tribute to the Crown Prince, and speaks of him in terms of endorsement. She also mentions the name of Germany's military idol, General von Hindenburg.

She speaks of the "Belgium atrocities" naming several specific cases that have come to her individual notice of the torturing of German soldiers. She upholds the invasion of that country by Germany with the statement that nothing would have happened to the kingdom, if they had permitted the transportation of troops across into France, and had been willing to accept an indemnity as Luxembourg did.

The writer seemingly has little but scorn and ridicule for the neutrality being exercised by the United States. She speaks of President Wilson in terms of sarcasm and states that he is doing more to beat Germany than all of the allies put together.

She upholds the belief that England is responsible for all of Germany's woes, and that the Germans are out to wipe the United Kingdom from the face of the earth. Seemingly she does not hold much antipathy against the remainder of the allies.

CALLAGHAN IS STILL WEIGHING DECISION

No decision had yet been reached last night by State Auditor Callaghan in the matter of an appeal from the decision of the superior court making absolute the writ of mandamus to compel the payment of claims. The auditor and his deputy, James B. Ormond, were in conference over the decision until a late hour, but at the close of the conference it was stated that there was no announcement to be made.

It was expected that the matter of the decision would be taken up at a conference yesterday afternoon, but owing to the pressure of other business the matter did not come up until last evening. One important question which was not included in the case, and consequently was not specifically passed on in the court decision was the matter of unexpended balances. A claim had been filed by State Mining Inspector G. H. Bolin, but it was withdrawn just before the case was filed, and too late to permit of the substitution of another claim.

FINANCES AND MARKETS

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH] NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The list was soft in spots in the morning with signs of a tendency to sell freely. Total sales amounted to 776 shares.
